

HOME WANTED

By DWIG

SOCIETY CHRONICLES

SANDMAN STORIES

JULIA MURDOCK'S GOSSIP

Italian Ambassador Will Be Host To Thomas Nelson Page Tonight

Large Dinner Party Will Be Given at Embassy for New Ambassador.

THE Italian ambassador, Marquis Cusani Confalonieri, will entertain at a large dinner party at the embassy this evening, in honor of the recently named Ambassador to Italy, Thomas Nelson Page.

Miss Louise Woodbridge, a cousin of the President, who spent a day or two at the White House, and Miss Winter, who has been visiting the Marquis Wilson, left today.

Mrs. F. H. Monroe entertained at luncheon Tuesday at her residence in Wyoming avenue in honor of Mrs. LeRoy Patterson, wife of State Senator Patterson of Georgia. The guests invited to meet her were Mrs. Joseph A. Marchant, Mrs. James W. Orme, Mrs. Humphrey Clappell, Mrs. Theodore H. Tiller, Mrs. Ethel Patterson Griffin, Mrs. John W. Fopham, and Mrs. Alexander McPherson.

Mr. and Mrs. David Fischer, Dr. Francis A. R. Jung, and Dr. Sophie A. Nordhoff-Jung were among those from Washington who will sail on the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, of the North German Lloyd line, today from New York en route to London.

Miss Eleanor Morgan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James Dudley Morgan, entertained at a dance last evening at the summer place of Dr. and Mrs. Morgan, in Chevy Chase, in compliment to her brother, Edwin Morgan, who has just returned from school in Massachusetts. Dr. and Mrs. Morgan, who have spent the last several weeks in Atlantic City, will return to Washington shortly. In August, accompanied by their family, they expect to go to one of the Northern resorts for the remainder of the season.

Mr. Justice and Mrs. Lorton and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lorton Jr. left today for their summer place at Watch Hill, R. I.

The Admiral of the Navy and Mrs. Dewey left yesterday for their summer place at Pittsfield, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Crenshaw and their daughters will leave the latter part of July for Atlantic City, where they will spend some time, and afterward will probably go to one of the mountain resorts to remain until fall.

The minister of Columbia, Senor Jose Betancourt, has leased the house at 1720 Seventeenth street for the coming season.

Lieut. Com. Radler de Aquino, naval attache of the Brazilian embassy, has leased an apartment at 1627 Sixteenth street for the coming season.

Mrs. Aldred E. Bates has gone to New York, from where she will sail in a few days to spend the summer abroad.

The Norwegian minister and Mme. Bryn are closing their residence, and will leave Washington within a fortnight for Seat Harbor, Me., where they will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hoover have gone to New York, en route to one of the Northern resorts, where they will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Fleming have given up their apartment in the Montana and taken possession of their new residence, in Harvard street.

The Vice President and Mrs. Marshall dined informally at the Shoreham Hotel last evening, having Louis Howland, of Indianapolis, among their guests.

The Secretary of War left today for Atlantic City, where he will join Mrs. Garrison, and remain over Sunday. Mrs. Garrison has been visiting Mrs. George Leary in New York, and making a round of visits on Long Island, but has gone to Atlantic City to remain for some time.

The Secretary of Agriculture has returned to Washington from a trip to Martha's Vineyard, where he accompanied his family early in the week, and directly from Yale University, where the degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon him.

MISS FRANCES EFFINGER.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Effinger, of Staunton, Va., who has spent the last two seasons in Washington, at the Grafton Hotel, are spending the summer touring Europe. They are accompanied by their two daughters, Miss Frances Effinger and Miss Mary Effinger, the latter of whom probably will be among the debutantes of next season. Miss Frances Effinger made her debut last season at a large dance at Raucher's.

Jerome N. Bonaparte has gone to Newport to spend the summer. William C. Marrow is also in Newport for a short visit.

Viscount Butemi Chinda, ambassador of Japan, entertained George W. Guthrie, ambassador to Japan at dinner at the embassy last night. The guests were the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Labor, John Bassett Moore, Solicitor General for the Department of State, John E. Osborne, Assistant Secretary of State; Ranfor E. Miller, of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs of the Department of State; Mantion M. Wyvell, Percival Hentzelman and Dr. Juchel K. Shidhar, counselor; Commander Shigetoshi Takeuchi, naval attache; Lieut. Col. Kasutau Inouye, military attache; Saburo Okabe, second secretary; Tamekichi Ohta, third secretary; Nagakage Okabe, attache, and Hiroshi Saito, attache, all of the embassy staff.

Mrs. John N. Speel and daughter, Miss Kathryn Hitchcock, expect to leave early in July for Jamestown, N. Y., where they will spend most of the summer. Pay Director Speel will join Mrs. Speel and Miss Hitchcock later in the season.

Miss Lena Hitchcock will probably spend the early part of the summer with her grandmother at one of the resorts on the North shore, going later to make visits in Newport.

Major William F. Biddle, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. Biddle expect to leave the latter part of July for New London, Conn., where they will spend the remainder of the season.

The Secretary of the Navy has accepted an invitation to address the fifth annual celebration of the Terminal Railroad Department, Y. M. C. A., on Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, in the gymnasium at the Union Station. Senator Ashurst of Arizona also will deliver an address.

Miss Katherine Elkins has arrived in Washington from the country place of her mother, Hallhurst, at Elkins, Va., and will be here for a short time.

Chinese Minister and Family Leave for Coast En Route to China.

The Chinese Minister and Mrs. Chang and their daughters, the Misses Chang, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Chang, will leave this afternoon at 3 o'clock en route to San Francisco, from where they sail shortly for their home in China. They will be accompanied to San Francisco by Chang Kan-jen, first secretary of the legation. This is the first time the minister has been able to return to his country since his appointment four years ago.

The departure of the minister and his interesting family makes a different picture from their arrival. They came in the picturesque costumes of their country, the wonderful tips of their oriental silks, the splendid workmanship of their foot-gear, and the elaborate coiffures and hair ornaments, making them resemble the dainty pictures on a fan, now they depart in chic tailor-made gowns with smart American made shoes of black leather, perfect fitting kid gloves and becoming French model hats.

The Vice President and Mrs. Marshall have as a guest Louis Howland, of Indianapolis, who was here with his sister, Miss Howland, at the time of the inauguration, and was their guest at the Shoreham.

The Secretary of Labor and Miss Agnes Hart Wilson will be joined here near the end of June by Mrs. Wilson, who will come from their farm in Pennsylvania. The Secretary and Miss Wilson will take possession of the residence in the Avenue of the Presidents, which they recently leased, about that time, and Mrs. Wilson will spend a week or two with them. After that she will return to Pennsylvania to remain until just before the schools open, when she will come to Washington with the younger members of the family and place them in school. She will spend next season in the Capital.

Personal Mention.

Meyer Davis, director of the orchestra at the New Willard, the Playhouse, and the Chevy Chase Club, has just received an invitation to take an orchestra to Bar Harbor, Me., for the summer months. Mr. Davis will leave about July 1 with a carefully picked number of musicians. His engagements will include important social functions of the famous resort.

The marriage of Miss Johanna Marie Gloetner, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Anton A. Gloetner, to George Francis Goggin, of Boston, took place this morning at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

After August 15, Mr. and Mrs. Goggin will be at home at 1430 Meridian street.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Colley are visiting the latter's parents at Atlantic City.

The marriage of Miss Frances G. Tinsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tinsley, of Culpeper, Va., to Dr. J. E. Wallace Wallin took place today noon, the Rev. J. C. Hall officiating.

Dr. Wallin is professor of clinical psychology and director of the psychological clinic of the University of Pittsburgh.

Immediately after the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Wallin left for a trip through the Middle West. They will go to Pittsburgh in the fall to make their home.

A lawn fete and barn dance will be held this evening at Fort Myer Heights, (Murphy Station) for the benefit of St. Charles Church, Clarendon, Va. The fete and dance will be the second of a series of entertainments to be given this summer.

Miss Alice L. Ford and Chase C. Gove were married at noon Thursday at the Chapel of the Nativity, the Rev. Enoch M. Thompson, rector of the church, officiating in the presence of a small party of relatives and friends.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Dr. George C. Ober, an old friend of the bride's family, wore a white

For The Times' Children Just Before It's Bedtime

SILLY SETH'S LUCK.

CLANG, clang, clang, went the big blacksmith's hammer on the anvil all day long. In rain or shine, hot or cold, it was the same. Always he stood with his leather apron and the sweat rolling from his brow, hitting the hot iron as he bent it into shape.

No wonder he worked hard, for in his cottage home there were a plenty to feed. There were fifteen children, the old grandmother and a crippled uncle, so the poor blacksmith had a hard time to get along.

Seth was the youngest boy, but on account of his strange ways every one thought him foolish and called him Silly Seth. But things worried Seth a great deal. One morning he would not eat any breakfast because he knew there would not be enough for all. He was very hungry by night, so hungry, in fact, that when he went to bed he could not sleep. About midnight he heard a curious sound in the shop, and getting up, peeped in. There on the anvil sat an old witch, and at her feet lay a broken broomstick.

"Do you want that mended, madam?" asked the boy, coming in suddenly.

"Certainly," replied the witch. "Don't you know that the broomstick is my horse?"

So Seth heated some iron and mended the broomstick nicely. When he had finished, the old witch took a tiny pot out of her bag and gave it to him.

"You have been a good lad and done a good bit of work," she said. "And I will reward you. Ask this pot for what you wish and it will come pouring out." And out of the door she swept on her broomstick horse, vanishing into the stormclouds.

"I want a big dinner," cried Seth to the pot, for he was terribly hungry. And in a trice there on the blacksmith's table was a smoking feast of chicken, and every kind of cake.

"What a fine breakfast I will give to all in the morning," thought generous Seth, but just then in at the door burst two robbers. They had seen the pot through the window and came in to steal it. So, jerking it out of the boy's hands, they ran away to the woods.

With the pot gone, Seth thought it best to say nothing about it to his family. In bed that night he again heard the noise in the shop, and again he went down to find the old witch sitting on the anvil and her broomstick broken at her feet.

"If you will mend my horse again," she said, "I will give you another gift." So Seth fixed it up better than it was before. Before she left she placed in his hand a bowl.

"If you wish for anything this bowl will bring it to you," she said, vanishing again into the darkness.

Seth wished for a good dinner. By the time he had finished the two robbers, who were again peeping in, rushed into the room, and grabbing the bowl, ran away to the woods, so he again determined to say nothing to his family.

The next night he lay awake, hoping the old witch would come again, and thinking that if she did, he would fix sergeant with a white picture hat and carried white gardenias and white sweet peas.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Gove left for a wedding trip, and upon their return will reside on B street southeast.

Miss Helen Sanger, of U street, is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Dave Sanger, of Villa Flora.

Miss Beattie Reynold, of Newport News, is the guest of Miss Hilda Jacob, of the Cliffborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph King, of Calvert street, have as their guest Miss Gertrude King, of New York.

Mrs. Sol Meyers and daughter, Miss Bertha Meyers, have returned home after spending the past few weeks in Atlantic City.

Mrs. Henry Straus and baby have returned to Richmond after a visit here with Mrs. Straus' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Baer, of the Netherlands.

The members of the Octagon Club will be hosts to the boat ride down the Potomac tomorrow.

Mrs. William Thalheimer is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, of Calvert street.

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Rosenberg have the

He heard a curious sound in the shop.

the robbers so they would not steal again.

Sure enough, he heard her in the shop about midnight, and went down. After he had mended her broom nicely she put into his hands a bag.

"This bag has a big clasp in it," she said, "but it will come out and beat any other known director, even if you include a musical director. He is a huster. He is a resourceful person. He is all nerves, and minus a heart. This is not because he was born without this necessary organ, but because he must another what a human feeling he may possess for the success of his occupation. He is the busiest and the most important man in the whole establishment—therefore the most brusque—and if one can succeed in storming his lair,

"Out of the bag, stick, and beat those men till they return my magic pot and bowl," cried Seth.

Out of the bag leaped the witch, and hard it hit on the two clobbered men. Around it whirled, and like a flash it at a dozen places at once. The men howled and fled, but Seth ran at their heels.

"Give me back my pot and bowl," he cried. Quickly the men flew to their cave and came running out with the pot and bowl, which they placed in the boy's hands.

"Now run such men out of the country," he ordered. And away they dashed, after them came the club, hitting them hard every time they stopped till they were chased into the sea.

Seth went home and went to sleep. But at dawn he was up and when the family awoke they found they no longer slept in a shanty into which the rain poured, for the cottage home had been changed into a handsome mansion, the land about was a beautiful park, and on the table in the great dining hall was a grand breakfast of everything one could wish.

So the good, old blacksmith had a rest for his aching hands and did nothing but drive about the country, while Seth attended to his affairs which were not of great importance. He helped his poor neighbors and set many up in business, and built good roads so the farmers could drive to market easily.

So that in this way he lived a long and happy life. But no longer was he known as Silly Seth.

returned to their home in Baltimore place, after spending a few days during the week in New York.

Mrs. Monroe Luchs, who has been the guest of Mrs. Sydney Reizenstein, of the Dupont, has returned to her home in New York.

Mrs. Oscar Sternfeld, of New York, and Mrs. Fred Hahn, of Sacramento, Cal., are visiting their mother, Mrs. Mina Oppenheimer, of 906 Ninth street northwest.

Mr. and Mrs. G. McCallister and children left Thursday to spend the summer at Ingleside, Md.

Mrs. Carl Kaufman and daughter, who have been spending the past few months here, left during the week for their home in St. Gall, Switzerland.

Mrs. William Graft, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jones Hechinger, has returned to her home in Norfolk.

Miss Daisy Marx was returned to her home on Thirteenth street from Lehigh, Pa., where she went to attend the exercises at the university.

The Difference.

Prof. Wieser—What effect does the moon have upon the tide? Swed. Co-Ed—None! It affects only the untied—Milwaukee Free Press.

Many Are Called, But Few Are Chosen For the "Movies," Says Julia Murdock

Aspiring Amateurs Write Her to Learn How to Join the "Silent" Actors.

SCARCELY a day passes that the dramatic department does not receive a communication from some aspiring amateur, whose desire to pose for the motion pictures amounts almost to a madness. Many are called, but few are chosen might be applied to those who enter the motion picture field, for even after they have been chosen, more than half of the performers, or would-be performers drop out, for one reason or another.

When the players respond for the first call for rehearsal they are instructed and drilled in the situation in which they are to appear, the story they are to portray by gesture and play of feature alone; and then, when the manager finds that they are keyed up to the right pitch of perfection the camera begins to snap—there must be no delay then. The principal members of the company have probably read the play, and have some lucid idea of what it is all about, but the minor people depend upon instructions at rehearsal to learn how their movements and expression are to help a story they never knew.

and in putting before him the fact that one is looking for a position to pose for a motion picture, the battle has only commenced. The director never encourages any one of the hundreds who feel that they have a call to the "movies" for he knows by experience that those who feel this call the deepest are probably the poorest material. On the list of every motion picture establishment are the names of thousands of people, ranging from babies in arms to old and broken down actors and actresses, the latter of whom seek in the motion picture business a rest from the discomforts of the road. Many are called, but few are chosen might be applied to those who enter the motion picture field, for even after they have been chosen, more than half of the performers, or would-be performers drop out, for one reason or another.

When the players respond for the first call for rehearsal they are instructed and drilled in the situation in which they are to appear, the story they are to portray by gesture and play of feature alone; and then, when the manager finds that they are keyed up to the right pitch of perfection the camera begins to snap—there must be no delay then. The principal members of the company have probably read the play, and have some lucid idea of what it is all about, but the minor people depend upon instructions at rehearsal to learn how their movements and expression are to help a story they never knew.

Time comes when the motion picture actress must play the role of the drunkard's wife, and receive a beating, and other times come when she is required to jump over a rocky cliff, or swing across a chasm. She must be rescued from a burning building, bound and gagged by robbers, shot at by blood-thirsty Indians while she rides for her life; walk into lions' dens, and do many other "stunts" that would make the ordinary stay-at-home girl tremble with terror. It is all in the day's work with the motion picture actor or actress.

Think of this, girls, when your soul yearns for adventure, and you feel the call to enter the motion picture field. And, remember, that there are hundreds ahead of you, and if you happen not to obtain the position, do not feel too badly. It's much more pleasant, safe, and delightful to sit in front and watch the pictures as they appear on the screen than to participate in the strenuous business of helping to make them.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

These coat buttons well up around the throat, and is single breasted, the buttons, which are of celluloid or vegetable ivory and large and round, are arranged in groups of five. Sleeves are body and very roomy, the cuffs are deep and turned back, and the Norfolk belt is wide and heavy. This coat is $22.50, but others are to be had at lesser prices. One other coat made in sack style is a little over $10. It has patch pockets, and is decorated with marvelous round buttons made of painted wood.

Real soda water made at home from home-made ingredients and filled with ice cream of home manufacture is possible with the siphon and cartridges which the Shopper saw at the leather store in the north side of F street not far from the corner of Thirteenth. The siphon holds three pints of liquid and is carbonated by the insertion of a cartridge at the stopper. This siphon is $3.75 and will last indefinitely, while the cartridges are to be had at 5c the dozen, one serving to carbonate three pints of cold liquid. This makes the carbon water much cheaper than can be bought at drug stores in the regular siphon bottles.

There are many secrets for warm weather dressing. The fact that some women wear coat suits just as they would dresses, is not known to everyone but it is nevertheless both a true and widely favored plan.

With the very light weight ratine coat suits, or the dresser of the Balkan blouses no waist is worn underneath, only a net "dickie" sometimes made with sleeves and sometimes made with just the collar and an elaborate front full. These "dickies" may be had at the department store at the corner of Eleventh and F streets for 50c, but they are rather plain, with no sleeves. More expensive and fluffier creations may be had at the same counter at correspondingly higher prices.

If there are no sleeves in the dickie, pleated lace is usually worn at the wrist, sewed into the coat sleeve, and the coat is never removed.

Clothing for women are beginning to see the advisability of making alterations and styles to suit in some degree the comfort of the wearers. Since the one-piece costume is favored, the outing coat has come into its own, and is made heavy or light, brilliant or quiet in hue, or long or short.

So many separate coats in a peculiar can shade were seen at the recent polo match at Piping Rock that they were at once given the name of Piping Rock coats, and are to be seen in all the shops. The shade is called cafe au lait, and the material of one which is to be seen at the Miness shop at the corner of Tenth and F streets, is diagonal chin-chilla.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

FOR TIMES WOMEN WHO WANT TO KNOW What Is Seen in The Shops

Roosevelt Will Not Assist in Campaign

NEW YORK, June 21.—Colonel Roosevelt will not be in the United States during the campaign this year. When he goes to the Argentine republic, which he will do in the fall, it will not be merely for the purpose of delivering to the Argentinians some general information about our system of government. He will discuss before them the same thing that he advocated in the last Presidential campaign.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.

What he has to tell the Argentinians will be along the same lines as his "Confession of Faith" speech at Chicago, when he was nominated for President by the Bull Moose convention, and his "charter of Democracy" speech at Columbus, at the inauguration of his contest against President Taft for the Republican nomination.